

Anyone who went through the construction period of the Southwestern Proving Ground here isn't going to have much stomach for another war plant — however much the state is intrigued by published reports that the government is considering establishing the proposed Hydrogen Bomb plant in the Ozarks.

None of us laymen know anything about either the Atom or Hydrogen Bombs — except that the one is an accomplished terror and the other offers promise of being a greater terror yet to come. That's why they are talking about a location in the Ozarks — there are plenty of caves up there, and caves would be useful in handling a dangerous manufacturing and storage operation such as the Hydrogen Bomb plant.

But are there enough caves? On every hand you hear about people planning to retire to their own private cave in the event of a bomb attack. This is bound to produce complications. Imagine taking title to a cozy Ozark cave all fitted out with electricity, heat and running water — and discovering the next morning that you had spent the night as the neighbor of a Hydrogen Bomb plant in an adjoining cave!

There ought to be some government bureau charged with regulating such matters. Either we get the caves and they make the Hydrogen Bomb in the open, or they'll make the bomb in the caves and the rest of us will catch air.

I always did like the mountains — but now the prairies, though they may be less glamorous, take on a sudden virtue... the virtue of a long and unviolated life.

A wire item yesterday reported

Autumn has taken its first bite. In the Great Lakes area of northern Michigan the mercury dropped to 30 degrees Thursday night. If you've ever sailed — the Great Lakes you know the score. The northern reaches of Lakes Huron and Superior go deep in to Canada. Back in college days I recall a voyage on an iron ore freighter from Cleveland, Ohio, to Duluth, Minn., and return — a roundtrip of 2,000 miles. We started off in shorts and sandals — and wound up on Lake Superior wearing sheepskin coats. That was in July. A sheepskin coat in July spells frost in August — and ice in September.

Fortunately our steam-heated climate is proof against Autumn for another two months.

Yesterday's edition reported that President Truman has thrown White House support to construction of the Dardanelle dam on the Arkansas river — but there is still no indication congress is going to vote the necessary money.

Nor is the money likely to be furnished until the nation knows where it stands in the Korean war and the larger question of future Russian expeditions. The same goes for any dam anywhere. We can plan these things, certainly — but how foolish to spend money within America when we don't know whether America herself is actually safe from a barbaric enemy.

Terms Reached in New York Paper Strike

New York, Aug. 19 (P) — The two-month strike of the CIO American newspaper guild against the New York World-Telegram and Sun was tentatively settled today. An agreement covering "all issues" was hammered out in a 15-hour, all-night bargaining session with the help of federal mediators. Guild delegates said they would recommend the settlement of the 400 strikers, but said the terms will not be released until the membership votes on acceptance Tuesday night.

The long meeting broke up at 3 a. m. (CST) with smiles and shakes. "I am very happy that both sides have reached an agreement we can live under," the World-Telegram's managing editor and one of the negotiators, B. O. McAnaney, said.

Thomas J. Murphy, executive vice president of the guild local, said the strike will continue with picket lines, and the paper will make no effort to reopen its plant pending the Tuesday vote. McAnaney said it would take two or three days after a final settlement to begin publishing again.

Yanks Push Reds Back

New Central Intelligence Chief Named

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Aug. 19 (P) — Walter Bedell Smith, the American general who spent three years watching the Russians from the U.S. embassy in Moscow, is going to be the new chief of the central intelligence agency.

The priority job of that agency is to learn what the Soviets are up to now.

Announcement was made last night that Smith, who was United States ambassador to Russia from February 1946 to March 1949, would become director of the top political-military intelligence unit late in September.

President Truman was reported to have long wanted Smith, with his background as a soldier and his service as envoy to Russia, to take the CIA post. However, Smith had been ill and the appointment awaited his recovery.

Smith succeeds Rear Admiral Roscoe M. Hillenkoetter.

White House Secretary Charles Ross took pains to declare the change does not reflect any presidential dissatisfaction with Hillenkoetter's work as CIA director. He said the admiral had requested months ago to be relieved so he could take sea duty with the navy. Hillenkoetter will take command of a cruiser division when he leaves CIA.

Ross' statement obviously was directed at offsetting speculation the change in CIA command was lined to U.S. surprise at the North Korean Communist invasion of South Korea.

Some congressmen, aroused by what they regarded as failure of American intelligence to warn of the attack, had demanded a shakeup in the agency headed by Hillenkoetter. The admiral has denied CIA was caught napping.

Smith, 54 years old and veteran of army service beginning in World War I, was chief of staff for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower at Allied supreme headquarters in World War II. He came back to this country in December 1945. Two months later he was picked by Mr. Truman for the Moscow diplomatic post.

School Calls for Students in Printing

Applications are now being accepted from students interested in college training in graphic arts and printing by Arkansas Graphic Arts Advisory Committee, it was announced today by H. C. Taylor of Jonesboro, secretary of the committee.

The Arkansas Press Association, which appointed the committee, has approved Arkansas State College in Jonesboro for the training of students in graphic arts and printing fields. The new semester will open on Wednesday, September 6.

At the request of the Press Association, Arkansas State College will offer two-four year degrees with majors in graphic arts. At the present time State College has equipment valued at more than $135,000 and about 9,000 feet of floor space in its laboratory.

Tom Allen of Brinkley, President of the Arkansas Press Association, has been elected chairman of the Graphic Arts Advisory Committee. It has approved the College's curriculum and physical plant. State College is the only tax-supported institution in the state offering degrees in graphic arts and printing.

Since the war a serious shortage of printers and craftsmen in graphic arts has developed. It has been estimated that more than 50,000 printers alone are desperately needed now. In order to help Arkansas newspapers alleviate this shortage of trained printers, a two-year course in vocational printing—which has been offered by State College since 1946 — will be continued.

Room reservations for students interested in enrolling in graphic arts in September are still available at State College, according to Mr. Taylor. Further information can be had by calling at the office of this newspaper or by writing to Arkansas State College, Jonesboro.

(NEA TELEPHOTO) ALLEGED ATOMIC SPY ARRESTED IN LAREDO—Morton Sobell, a New York electrical engineer and former Navy employee, was arrested in Laredo, Texas, on charges of spying for Russia. He was the eighth American arrested in connection with a Soviet atomic spy ring operating in the U. S.

Red Korean Losses 50,000 Army Claims

Washington, Aug. 19 (P) — The army estimated today that the North Korean Communists have lost 50,000 men so far in their invasion of South Korea.

At the same time an army spokesman estimated that South Korean losses up to three weeks ago totaled 37,000.

The spokesman said that round-ups of American casualties in Korea will not be announced hereafter until they have no value to the enemy. The last roundup of American casualties was issued about two weeks ago.

The total at that time was 2,616 for the American army. The defense department has continued since then to issue daily lists of individuals killed, wounded or missing in Korea.

The estimates of losses by the North and South Korean forces also include killed, wounded and missing.

The army spokesman said the North Koreans have been "conscripting wholesale" recently — calling up all men and women between the ages of 18 and 40.

"It is evident that they are managing to keep a good sized nucleus of well trained men at the front," the spokesman said. "But all indications are that the bulk of the Communist foot soldiers now are not well trained."

He stated one of the indications came in the recent Communist attack toward the important communications center of Taegu. The army and excellent information that 30,000 men were involved in the push toward Taegu, he continued, but it apparently fizzled out. A month ago, he said, the story would have been much different.

"I don't mean to be overly optimistic," the spokesman told reporters, "but it is perfectly evident that their infantry is not performing as well and that ours is performing better as it becomes accustomed to the type of fighting. The balance that started heavily in favor of the Communists is now shifting somewhat."

The briefing officer added that air attacks on the Communist's communications also were taking their toll on supplies.

The spokesman would not attempt an estimate of the number of men remaining in the Communist army after its estimated losses of 50,000. But he said 12 North Korean divisions have been identified in the battle area. The spokesman said the army does not know what the Communists have in reserve.

Former Hope Woman Dies in Arizona

Mrs. George Hinton, Sr., 84, formerly of Hope, died at her home in Phoenix, Ariz., Thursday afternoon at 3:30. Funeral services were held in Phoenix at 11:30 Saturday morning.

She is survived by Mrs. J. A. Davis, Hope; Mrs. Floy Cannon, Luthan; Mrs. Day Campbell, Mrs. Jessie Watson, and George Hinton Jr., all of Phoenix.

Mrs. Hinton was the grandmother of Mrs. Cline Franks and Hinton Davis of this city. More menhaden are caught on the south Atlantic and Gulf coasts than all other fin fishes combined, says the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Verbal Blows Delay Action on Money Bill

Washington, Aug. 19 (P) — Clashing personalities, gumming up the ponderous machinery of congress, threatened today to delay for a long while agreement between the senate and house on funds to run the government this year.

Rep. Clarence Cannon, 71-year-old Missouri Democrat who heads the house appropriations committee, was involved separately with two senators in heated word battles that argued no good for final action on the $34,000,000 single package appropriation bill. It carries the vast bulk of funds to support the government this year.

Lined up on the other side were 81-year-old Kenneth D. McKellar, fiery Tennessee Democrat who heads the senate appropriations group, and 71-year-old Pat McCarran, Nevada Democrat who is an appropriations member and heads the senate judiciary committee.

Cannon and McKellar climaxed the battle of the veterans yesterday with a shouting exchange behind closed doors where senators and house members were trying to reach an agreement on the rivers, harbors and flood control section of the huge bill.

As the story sifted out to reporters, McKellar had presented a compromise proposal for the senators. Cannon put it aside with a remark that it seemed to be the work of the corps of army engineers, which he has criticized in the past.

McKellar, angered, was reported to have loosed a tirade at Cannon, banging his gavel for silence when Cannon tried to reply. Some senators said they learned some new words in the exchange.

The meeting broke up without meeting by mistake, thinking wrongly that he was a member of agreement. No time was set for a new session.

Later McKellar told reporters that Cannon "wants to talk all the time" and "has no spirit of cooperation or compromise."

Cannon declined any comment on the tiff.

That was the second encounter of the week for the doctored house appropriations chairman.

Earlier he had a brush with McCarran when another conference group was studying interior department appropriations.

McCarran said he went to that meeting by mistake, thinking wrongly that he was a member of that particular conference group.

When Cannon demanded that McCarran leave the room, the Nevada senator said he left, but only after he had informed Cannon where he also could go.

Local Guard Unit to Return Home

Camp Polk, La., Aug. 19 (P) — Flushed with compliments from governors and generals, the boys of the 39th national guard division packed their barracks bags and broke up camp today for the trip home.

Verbal blows on the back came from Lt. Gen. Leroy Lutes, commander of the Fourth army, San Antonio, and Gov. Ed McMath of Arkansas.

Their two weeks training camp was climaxed yesterday by a review by General Lutes.

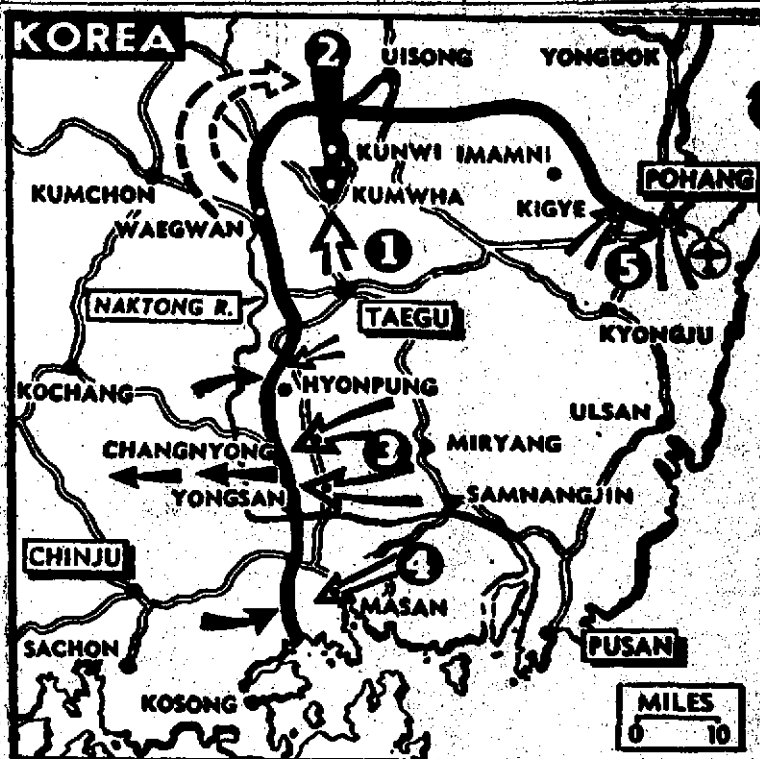

Governor McMath said the boys from Louisiana and Arkansas were the "best trained national guard" outfit in the United States. "That kind of talk will lead to activation," an unidentified officer commented with a grin.

General Lutes complimented their training and physical condition.

The three star general said he was proud to have the 39th division as part of the Fourth army and added, "I hope the division will not be called" into service. During ceremonies preceding the review, Maj. Gen. Raymond Fleming, division commander, presented Col. Daniel A. Norman of Shreveport, regular army instructor of the 190th infantry regiment, the division certificate of merit for outstanding service during the past year.

A. A. Fredericks, assistant to Gov. Earl Long, represented Long at the review.

Brig. Gen. Earl Ricks of Hot Springs, the Arkansas adjutant general, also attended the review.

COUNTERATTACK STOP REDS COLD—A surprise allied counterattack (1) bolstered by 25th Division units rushed from the South coast, stopped cold the North Korean's major attack (2-13 miles from Taegu. Reds were reported reinforced by several divisions from the Waegwan area (broken arrow). Marines and 24th Division troops scored another great victory (3) by wiping out communists big beachhead at Chanknyong, sending enemy into demoralized retreat across the Naktong River. Southern anchor (4) is held by 25th Division troops facing North Korean build-up west of Masan. On Eastern front (5) South Koreans reported recapture of Pohang and Kigye.

At the Front You Hesitate to Ask About an Old Friend—He May Not Be There Now

By HAL BOYLE

Korea — (P) — It is night and you are miles behind your own line.

You may have gone up to the front and been scared during the day, but that was earlier. You have come home to the tapwater from an army disapproved showers to wash away the road dust that feels an inch deep on your skin.

You have got back in time to eat a meal. Or you may be forced to try to digest something out of a can you have stuffed under a bunk.

But bad as the food may taste or persistent as the mosquitoes are buzzing around to dagger you, you are among the fortunate ones of the Korean war. You at least generally sleep free from danger. This is the great advantage a correspondent has over any one group of doughboys. They had to stay and take it — and he comes up for a visit and then gets the hell out of there.

The disadvantages of the reporter covering a war is that he has to go up each day to the place where the battle activity is highest, or at least he does many days if he has a conscience. So if you total up his exposure to "the million dollar wound" — the one that sends him home with four limbs and a head — he gets at least an admiring understanding of the average combat infantryman.

And he gets an extra bonus—an understanding on the part of the doughboy of the job a correspondent has to do. This happens so often that it usually makes a correspondent feel ashamed. Many and many a time an infantryman will say to a reporter who comes up to write the story of men under fire:

"You're crazy. You mean you come up here when you ain't ordered to? Look, be smart. Get the hell out of here."

But if you hang around for a while with their far-off rumble. A few trigger-happy rear headquarters troops send up some red tracer fire and someone new to the front says:

"Look! Lightning bugs!" And some more experienced correspondent says:

"Yeah, 50-caliber fire-flies!" It's all so beautiful when you are out of range. It looks like the Fourth of July back home as the flashes are born and die in the darkness and the illuminating shells hang like the star of Bethlehem in the sky for a few moments and then die below the horizon.

Oh, it feels so good to be alive and so far away from it then. You don't think that tomorrow you will be up in that battlefield again yourself.

You just think that maybe you ought to write a letter home to someone you love — and you wonder whether the unseen and hidden hell of metal that breaks with each flash of light will kill an enemy — or touch someone you met yesterday or the day before.

And if the news does carry you that way the next day you will hesitate to ask for friends you knew before. For the heart always shrinks from hurt. And sometimes it says it just can't take the loss of one more friend and still you keep on writing. And you can't listen to it — can you?

Threats Beaten Back in Two Fronts; North Korean Make Landing on Red-Held Island

By RELMAN MORIN

Tokyo, Sunday, Aug. 20 — (P) — General MacArthur's lie a quarter said today that four Communist divisions may be regrouping for a new assault against United Nations lines along the Korean north-central front.

The post-midnight war summary said word of the buildup came from an unconfirmed prisoner-of-war report.

The North Korean divisions are probing along the crucial Naktong river front, the headquarters statement reported, as the Reds sought possible soft spots in the U. N. Wall before Taegu, long the main forward base of the American defense.

MacArthur's headquarters did not pin-point the area of the reported North Korean four-division troop buildup, but implied it was along the Naktong west of Taegu.

A virtual news blackout from the front made clarification impossible. Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson said in a dispatch that all teletype and telephone communications for the press had been removed from the Eighth army headquarters.

It is through this spot that virtually all press dispatches from Korea are funneled to Tokyo for relay to the United States.

The latest communiqué made no specific mention of the Taegu situation but earlier a spokesman for General MacArthur said the threat to the city had eased. However, U. S. officers pointed out that some 50,000 Red troops still threatened the U. N. lines in this embattled area.

The communications cut-off with front reports left an uncertain picture of the entire front, however, since Tokyo headquarters refused to say whether the field developments.

Before the lid was slammed down, an official announcement told of a surprise Allied landing on a west-coast island deep in Red territory.

Also at some points on the front north of Taegu, the enemy had fallen back, permitting Allied patrols to range four to six miles into Communist territory without serious opposition.

The Reds fell back before United Nations assaults on the road north from Taegu and in the Changnyong sector to the southwest. Both were danger spots earlier in the week.

The surprise landing was the first Allied action of its kind in the war. It was made by South Korean troops Friday on Tokchok island after a brief shelling by British cruisers and destroyers. The island is 35 miles southwest of Inchon, port of Seoul on the Yellow sea.

Full significance of the landing was not explained by the spokesmen.

U. S. Contracts Are Nice for Business

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Aug. 19 (AP)—How can businessmen get business with the government?

Which is another way of saying: How can they stay abreast of contracts for which the government wants bids?

Do they have to come to Washington to find out? In many cases, perhaps most, they don't. They can find out in their own towns.

The department of commerce has worked out a system to keep them informed and help them make bids on work they can do. It's done through the department's 42 offices around the country and business organizations in cities and communities, such as local chambers of commerce, boards of trade and so on.

Altogether there are about 2,100 such outlets. The main point in the system is the department's Chicago office and this is the way it works:

Say the army quartermaster in New York wants to have uniforms made. Though a nationwide teletype hook-up of government agencies they send this information to the Chicago office.

This office summarizes the information pouring into it daily, and then sends it out by mail to the 2,100 outlets mentioned above.

They display it for businessmen in their area to read. About 500 summaries of these contracts that need to be filled go to the 2,100 outlets, daily department of commerce officials say.

And since they're displayed in those outlets, businessmen can go to them daily to see what's cooking in the way of government business.

Here's a theoretical example of what happens: Jones in Peoria makes zippers and therefore has metal-working machinery. He reads that the army needs zippers or something else which he thinks his machines can make.

The summary about the zippers, which Jones reads in his chamber of commerce office in Peoria, will say what branch of the government wants the work done. It may be, for illustration, the same army quartermaster in New York.

If Jones can make what the quartermaster wants, he writes to him and asks for detailed information. When he receives this, he figures out the cheapest price at which he can do the job.

He sends this, his bid, to the quartermaster. On a certain day all the bids from all the Joneses are opened. The lowest bidder meeting all specifications gets the government contract.

The various departments of the government have purchasing offices scattered around the country. And each of these has a list of businessmen who long ago asked to be considered bidders on contracts that fall within their ability to produce.

So the system worked out by the department of commerce simply widens the range of possible bidders and makes it easier for businessmen around the country to be better informed on government contract needs.

At the commerce department here, it was said that a lot of businessmen are coming into Washington, looking for contracts, when they could save time and money by checking the contract needs at one of the 2,100 outlets nearest them.

In addition, once a week the 2-100 outlets get a list of contracts awarded by the department of defense for $25,000 or more.

awarded during the 1950-51 school year.

"Lion Oil, itself an integral part of the South, has established this fund with a sincere desire to broaden the educational opportunities of civic-minded Southern youth — our future leaders," Col. Barton explained.

According to Mr. T. M. Martin, President of Lion Oil, the scholarships will be awarded through a series of essay contests, and there will be additional cash awards for second and third place winners, but complete details have not yet been worked out.

"High school students throughout Arkansas, and in sections of Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky will be eligible," Mr. Martin said. "There will be cash awards for teachers, too."

Details of the contests will be published later in newspapers and in announcements to high schools.

A navy spokesman said Tokchok may have been a Red center for waterborne communications.

The MacArthur spokesman also disclosed that South Korean guerrillas — or possible regular army units — may be operating behind Communist lines.

"I think the enemy's back areas are not too quiet," he remarked. He said he lacked details on both this and the island landing.

MacArthur's communique said the amphibious force took Chinui village on Tokchok without incident. There was no hint of the size of the landing force.

MacArthur's intelligence spokesman gave these estimates of the whole Nakdong battle picture are three days of the heaviest fighting.

Sunday School Lesson

By William Gilroy

If there were any doubt concerning the greatness of John the Baptist, the forerunner of Jesus, that was settled for all time by Jesus' tribute to John. His words were clear, decisive, and in the very height of praise.

"Among those that are born of women," said Jesus, "there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist." It is as if Jesus was answering the thoughts of those who did not think so highly of John — those who judged by outward appearances and failed to see anything great or prophetic in an ill-clad ascetic breaching a stern gospel of repentance.

"What went ye out for to see?" the wind? A man clothed in soft raiment? Mocking their thoughts, He continued, "Behold, they which are gorgeously appareled and live in luxury, are in kings' courts."

It is always necessary to remember that greatness in men, and truth in religion, are not always associated with outward forms and trappings, no matter how gorgeous they may be. In my boyhood I used to hear itinerant Canadian Methodist ministers sing a hymn descriptive of themselves.

"No foot of land do I possess,
No cottage in the wilderness,
A Poor wayfaring man."

That is not necessarily characteristic of the true preacher and prophet. The laborer is worthy of his hire. But in so far as it represented a self-denial and devotion in voluntary service, there was something noble about it; just as there is something ignoble about a professed servant of God being too engrossed with worldly ambitions.

Suppose a figure like John appeared in modern society. Remember, he was rough and ill-clad, ascetic in manner and habit. If he denounced the sins of our time, and asked men to repent; how would he be received? Would he be called a prophet, or a crank?

The question is provocative, but I turn from it to the remarkable saying of Jesus, that followed his tribute to John as the greatest of those born to women; Jesus said "But he that is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he."

What did Jesus mean by these words? I think the usual interpretation is that Jesus was stressing the nature of the dispensation of love, the dispensation of law; the New Testament, or Covenant, as built upon the Old. It was a dispensation of love, a fulfillment rather than a denial of the law.

I think the meaning may be brought out more clearly, if we compare Jesus with John. Jesus made the comparison himself. He spoke of himself as coming "eating drinking." He was not an ascetic. He came to give men life, and to give it more abundantly. Repentance is good, only as it is the gateway to constructive living.

Expression, not repression, is the dominant note of the true citizen of the kingdom of God, the kingdom which John said was "at hand," and which Jesus said is "within you."

ing of the war:
1 The threat to Teagu, abandoned this week as the provisional South Korean capital, "does not exist today as it did Thursday." But three to five Red divisions, possibly 50,000 men, still were poised north of the city.

2 U. S. marines and army infantry mauled the elite North Korean Fourth division so badly in the Nakdong bulge near Changnung that "for the immediate future it can no longer be considered a fighting division."

3 The enemy lost an estimated 2,200 men Thursday along the whole perimeter — the biggest single day's bag for the Allies.

for dial telephones
in Hope
IF...

As a part of the Greater Arkansas Telephone Program, we propose to spend $726,000 here in Hope to provide modern dial telephone service before the end of 1953.

In addition to dial service here, this program throughout the state would include these further benefits:

More rural telephones would be added to tie farm and city closer together.

Facilities would be improved and expanded so that everyone could be sure of getting the service he wants... when and where he wants it.

More long distance circuits would be added to speed your out-of-town calls.

This program would provide telephone service here EQUAL TO THE WORLD'S BEST...

BUT... before we can carry out this program, we must remove one big obstacle—the low earnings of the telephone company in Arkansas—less than 2 cents on each dollar invested. Without adequate earnings, we cannot justify spending the necessary dollars of new investment money to carry out this huge improvement program.

We want to go ahead—and we will—just as soon as we can get the higher rates necessary to produce adequate earnings.

Sports Mirror

By The Associated Press

Today A Year Ago — Connie Mack, 88, Philadelphia's grand old man of baseball, was honored by New York City.

Five Years Ago — Outfielder Charlie Keller returned to the New York Yankees lineup after being out with injuries.

Ten Years Ago — The Bradley race horse, Bimelech, was retired to stud because of an injury.

Fifteen Years Ago — Japan beat a United States all-star swimming team, 38-27, in a three-day meet in Tokyo.

Homer by DiMaggio Wins Game

By JACK HAND

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Can Joe DiMaggio do it again? The Yankee Clipper's dramatic ninth inning home run in Philadelphia last night recalls his stirring deeds of 1936. How he came off the bench, plagued by injuries, to loosen a home run flurry that spurred New York to the American league pennant.

So far DiMaggio has been a bitter disappointment in 1939. So much of a flop that Manager Casey Stengel benched him last week for a "rest." They whispered Joe was washed up. Said he never again could demand $100,000 for a year's salary. Maybe they were wrong.

Restored to his old No. 4 clean-up spot in the batting order last night, DiMaggio responded with a home run that shaded Philadelphia, 3-2. It was his first homer and first run batted in since July 30.

DiMaggio went hitless until the ninth of a tight battle between the Yankees' Vic Raschi and the A's Lou Brissie. With one out and nobody on base, he hit Brissie's first pitch some 400 feet into the upper left field stands at Shibe Park.

It was an important win for the Yankees because both Detroit and Cleveland were rained out. As a result New York gained a half game on each and now trails the league-leading Tigers by four games.

Boston reeled off its sixth straight at Fenway park 7-6, after a 10-inning struggle with Washington. Bobby Doerr's 21st homer off Elmer Singleton, leading off the tenth, broke the tie.

The Red Sox also gained on the Tigers and Indians. They are six games out of first place.

Brooklyn chewed a full game off the Phillies' lead in the National as that race also tightened. By whipping Boston, 8-3, while New York dumped the Phils, 7-4, the Dodgers moved to within 5 1/2 games of first place.

Big Jim Heath, the $10,000 bonus bargain, beat the Phils for the second time within a week. The ex-St. Louis Cardinals righthander, allowed only five hits including homers by Andy Seminick and Willie Jones.

Hearn never has lost to the Phils, either as a Giant or Cardinal. His lifelong record is 7-0 against that club. It was his fifth victory to one loss since joining the Giants.

For the second game of the important series today, the Phils sent Ken Johnson, another ex-Cardinal, against Larry Jansen, the Giants' ace.

Brooklyn struggling to get back into the thick of things, will face E. J. Connor after Boston, looking for his 17th win, Mickey Haefner, waived out of the American league recently, will make his first start for the Braves.

Carl Erskine almost lasted the route last night for the Dodgers. The rookie had a no-hitter until Sam Jethroe beat out an infield hit with two out in the sixth. After the Braves got to him for three in the eighth, Ralph Brancat came in to relieve him in a ninth-inning jam.

Red Schoendienst's 11th inning single shoved St. Louis home in front of Cincinnati, 2-1. A throwing error by Grady Hatton set the stage for the winning single.

William Hamsdel just missed a shutout win in regulation time. He pitched 10 innings.

And almost inevitably the Cotton States league leaders lost their ball game which went with their "night." The score: Greenwood 5, Pine Bluff 3.

The visiting Dodgers made their five runs before Pine Bluff ever scored. Four of the runs came in the seventh inning on four hits, two of them doubles, and two walks.

Pine Bluff scored one in its half of the seventh when Roland Stock.
